

Please do not change or amend the Indiana No-call list law.

I am so relieved not to have to answer unwanted telemarketing calls in my home or home office. Those calls were an intrusion to my privacy, a nuisance distraction to my concentration, and I was angered each time I got one. They took away from my work time and used up my telephone time which I reserve for client call. (I have a home office and work at home.) The telephone should not be used to sell services or items to anyone who does not want it used for that purpose. I want my right to telephone privacy protected and for intrusive marketing companies to stay out of my home period.

Thank you,
Sincerely,
Stanley G. Miguel
